14th International Society of Presbyopia Congress
September 16, 2022

The International Society of Presbyopia (ISOP) conference brings together researchers and scientists who create new technologies relating to presbyopia, clinicians who work to improve their patients' vision, and companies which provide the products necessary for correction of presbyopia in patients. All three of these elements are necessary for a treatment to reach the patient. This year's congress will continue to provide a place to learn about the latest research in the field, to get a sense of which things work and which don't, and to see what is coming in future.

The annual conference connects our global community of professionals and serves as a major educational and networking opportunity for those interested in optical sciences and presbyopic correction. The nominal registration fee allows access to a larger audience however does not cover program expenses for administrative, food and beverage and onsite production/AV. No presenters are paid to speak at this event.

As with previous years, the conference will be held one day prior to the start of ESCRS and we expect approximately 175 attendees to the one-day conference.

Please check the website at www.presbyopia-international.com for updates to the program agenda.
